BAFF 'BAGMAN' IN; TEIPER UNMOVED GUARDS HIDE HIM BY MURDER TALE

Prosecutor Fears "Men Higher Up" Will Try to Gag Italian

Weighted down with ancient handcuffs and walking between two guards, an Italian stepped down the gang-plank of the steamer Duca d'Aosta, yesterday from Genoa. He was hustled to a closed cab, in which sat Assistant District Attorney O'Malley, and was driven to the office of the Italian Consul. From there he was hurried to the Criminal Courts Building and taken by a private entrance into the office of District Attorney Swann.

The prisoner was Antonio Cardinale, "bagman" for the ring that raised the money for the murder of Barnett Buff, the poultryman who was shot November 24, 1914. Cardinale was a wholesale poultry dealer at 408 East 108th Street. After the murder he fled to Italy and joined the army. He was arrested last spring.

Appeal to Italian Rules
After the trial and conviction of Giuseppe Arichello, the gunman who shot Buff, and Frank Ferrara, the driver of the murder car, the District Attorney had Cardinale indicted and then asked the Italian government for his return as a material witness against the men "higher up."

In spite of disagreement here and in Italy, Mr. Swann sent William Black, his assistant, to Italy last July, and after a four months' fight Mr. Black succeeded in obtaining Cardinale as a witness. This action was stubbornly opposed in the Italian courts by a lawyer, who apparently had plenty of money to spend.

Believing that this money was supplied from New York, Mr. Swann had arranged to have Cardinale kept away from all outside influences. He was taken to an obscure hotel last night by Detective De Martin, and today he will be brought to the District Attorney's office to tell what he knows of the men who contributed to the Buff murder fund.

Much Needed Testimony
"This is the man whose testimony is essential for the conviction of a number of men—men who know exactly how many—who instigated the murder. He is an accomplice and must be corroborated. We have that corroborated testimony in the case," said Mr. Swann last evening.

Following the news that Cardinale was under arrest and probably would be brought back to New York, Joseph Zaffarone, who, with his brother, Tony Zaffarone, was indicted for the murder, pleaded guilty to attempted murder in the first degree. The brothers acted as lookouts and excused in the murder car with Arichello and Ferrara. Joe Zaffarone has made several statements to the District Attorney which are regarded as of much value in checking up on the story that Cardinale is expected to tell.

RULES TO AID XMAS MAIL

Morgan Issues Circular for Senders of Gifts

To facilitate the prompt handling of Christmas mail, Postmaster Edward M. Morgan has issued instructions to persons sending packages. Observance of the following rules will do much to aid the prompt forwarding of mail. He says:

"Prepay postage fully on all parcels. Address parcels fully and plainly. Place name and address of sender on all matter. Pack articles carefully and wrap them securely, but do not seal them, as sealed parcels are subject to postage at the letter rate. They may be marked: 'Do not open until Christmas.'"

"Insure valuable parcels."

AMUNDSEN TO FLY OVER NORTH POLE

Explorer Plans to Study
Air and Water Currents
for Weather Tables

VISITS U. S., HE SAYS,
TO MAKE UP PARTY

Expects to Sail in 1918, and Will Use Aircraft When Ice Blocks Path

Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and navigator of the Northwest Passage, arrived yesterday on the Frederick VIII, and told of his plan to fly over the North Pole in a specially constructed aeroplane.

Captain Amundsen said that he expected to make observations of the ocean and air currents at the pole, which would aid in weather prognostications.

"If the scientists of the world have the necessary data regarding the movements of the waters and airs at one of the earth's axes they will be enabled to compile many much needed figures," he expects to start in 1918.

The expedition, which may not get away until the spring of 1918, due to the slowness of completion of Captain Amundsen's ship owing to the war orders which the Norwegian shipyards are completing, will be composed of many leading scientists, both here and abroad.

Captain Amundsen said that the personnel of his party had not yet been decided upon, and it was largely for that reason he had come to America, as America had furnished so many men for polar scientific and research work.

He expects to purchase two large aeroplanes, probably of different makes, and a large supply of provisions, sufficient to last two years. The aeroplanes and provisions will be purchased here owing to the scarcity in Europe caused by the war.

During the July following the completion of his ship Captain Amundsen will proceed as far as the ice floes will permit, and he hopes to be carried still further by the polar currents. As soon as his progress is halted he intends to use aeroplanes to fly over the pole.

Depends on Aeroplane
"I believe that the aeroplane will solve many difficulties of polar exploration work, especially in the high state of perfection. It is now possible to cover 200 kilometres an hour, where formerly it took two weeks to cover the same distance with slow dog sledges. I believe that I am the pioneer to use an aeroplane for polar exploration, but I am not deterred in my resolve, especially since I have recently obtained a military aviator's license."

Lords May Get Action Soon—Funds Raised for Test of Legitimacy

TO HEAR SLINGSBY CASE
Lords May Get Action Soon—Funds Raised for Test of Legitimacy

London, Nov. 27.—Announcement was made today that sufficient funds had been raised to carry the Slingby legitimacy case to the House of Lords and that the issue would be fought to the end. Hearings may be begun within a fortnight.

Last month the House of Lords granted a postponement until December 1 of the hearing in the appeal of the Slingby case from the judgment of the Court of Appeals, it having been stated that the appellant did not have funds for the appeal. The Court of Appeals ruled last March that an infant born in San Francisco, and declared to be the lawful son of Charles R. Slingby, was not the rightful heir to the Slingby estates in England, valued at about $500,000.

93 SPEEDERS ARE PUNISHED
88 Fined, Five Others Sent to Prison and Deprived of Licenses.

Magistrate House, in the Traffic Court, yesterday revoked the licenses of five chauffeurs, sentencing three of them to the City Prison for ten days each and two for five days each.

The magistrate also imposed fines of $25 each on eighty-eight offenders against the speed law who were summoned on Saturday. They explained their haste as due to a desire to get to the Army and Navy game.

Mayor to Review Orphans

Mayor Mitchell will act as reviewing officer. Music will be provided by the band of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

Good Places to Lunch
Marked on Air Maps

The next aviator who starts to fly from Chicago to New York will probably receive just before he takes the air a little map showing the winds and the weather, the shapes of the villages and towns over which he is to sail and the airports he is to follow. Good places to land for lunch will be marked with asterisks.

A committee from the Aero Club of America met yesterday afternoon in the apartments of Miss Ruth Law at the Hotel McAlpin. This committee on maps and landing places has just been formed. Its chairman is Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary. There were present yesterday Augustus Post, the aeronautical engineer; G. Douglas Wardrop, editor of "Aerial Age"; A. L. Haustetter, Henry Woodhouse, John D. Cooper, J. G. Gilpatrick, Baron L. d'Orcy, Walter H. Phipps and Miss Law.

The idea is to encourage "cross-country" flying, which Miss Law insists is great sport, by planning routes, just as motor trips are now planned. The ultimate goal of the committee is the publication of a sort of Aerial Blue Book. The plans call for the marking of towns in such a way as to let the aviator know where he is. The name of the city, it was suggested, could be painted on the roof of the most prominent building in great black letters on a white background.

Miss Law believes that "cross-country" flying will in time become as popular as touring by motor, and quite as simple. She expects to remain in New York another week and then go to Florida.

BOOM FOR OLLIE JAMES
Washington, Nov. 27.—Senator Ollie James is being mentioned by the early arrivals among the Democratic Senators as the probable choice for President pro tempore, to succeed the late Senator Clark of Arkansas.

Those supporting the Kentucky Senator point to his record as a leader of Administration forces during the last session, and to the fact that he was permanent chairman of the St. Louis convention. Among others already mentioned in connection with the place are Senators Bankhead, Overman, Saulsbury and O'Gorman.

ACTRESS IS ACCUSED IN PERRY'S DIVORCE

Granddaughter of J. B. A. Haggin Starts Action

The marriage of Miss Edith Lounsbury, granddaughter of the late James Ben Ali Haggin, to Henry Pierrepont Perry, brother of Mrs. Pierre Lorillard Ronalds, Jr., which took place at St. Thomas's Church in the presence of many persons of social prominence eleven years ago, is threatened with dissolution. Mrs. Perry has brought a suit for divorce in the Supreme Court, in which she mentioned an unidentified woman. She asked the court to give her the custody of her two children, Richard Pierrepont, not quite ten years old, and William Haggin Perry, six.

Mr. Perry is a stock broker. He is also a member of several clubs, and was graduated from Harvard in 1901. Served at the Stock Exchange in his wife's suit, Mr. Perry made a general denial. The answer was filed at the same time as the complaint.

Perhaps the identity of the "unknown woman" named by Mrs. Perry will never be made public, as it is likely that the action will be heard in a referee's office. It is said that she is an actress.

Mrs. Perry asserted that her husband's misconduct took place at the Hotel Wellington, on October 21. This charge indicated that he was under surveillance by agents of his wife.

JOSEPH BROOKS
KILLED BY PLUNGE
FROM 8TH FLOOR

Noted Theatrical Producer,
Ill, Believed to Have Committed Suicide

Joseph Brooks, known for years throughout the country as a theatrical manager, was added yesterday to the list of veterans of the stage whose careers have been ended by death. According to the police, Mr. Brooks, in a temporary fit of insanity, killed himself by an eight-story leap from the window of his room in the Brixton apartments, at 140 West Seventy-ninth Street.

Two months ago, it is said, he slashed his throat with a razor, following an attack of illness.

Mr. Brooks arose from bed shortly before 8 o'clock yesterday morning. His wife left him in his room while he prepared his bath. A few moments later she heard cries in the courtyard and hastened into Mr. Brooks's room. He was not there. Looking out of the window, she saw his body in the courtyard below and collapsed.

Mr. Brooks was born sixty-five years ago in Memphis, Tenn. He entered the theatrical business as a box office man and rose rapidly. At various times he had under his management such stars as John McCullough, Lotta Booth, Barrett, William H. Crane, Lillian Russell and Julia Arthur.

For the past year prior to 1914 Mr. Brooks had been associated with Klav & Erlanger and A. W. Dingwall, but he had also made many independent productions. Last May he was associated with the Klav & Erlanger production of "Ben-Hur," which proved an enormous money maker, and was also the producer of "Milk and Honey" and "His Majesty Bunker Bean."

It was Mr. Brooks, too, who was responsible for the markedly successful dramatization of "Tribly." Funeral services for Mr. Brooks, conducted by Pacific Lodge No. 233, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the grand lodge room at Masonic Hall, Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue.

ARABS OVERRUN TRIPOLI

Report Twenty Thousand Italians Fell in Battle Against Sultan's Allies
Berlin, Nov. 27 (by wireless to Sayville).—Arabs under Chief Halif Ben Asker have defeated a force of Italians near Dehabit, on the frontier of Tripoli and Arabs, according to a dispatch from Constantinople to the Overseas News Agency.

The Arabs then penetrated Tunis and engaged the French forces, the message adds, the battle being still in progress. The losses of the Italians are estimated at 20,000, says the message, without including prisoners taken by the Arabs in the interior of the country.

The Constantinople advices say that the Turkish administration in Tripoli has been completely reestablished as it was prior to the Turkish-Italian war. The Italians dare not abandon the five cities which they still occupy on the Tripoli coast.

4 CAUGHT IN SHEET OF FIRE

Heroic Battalion Chief, Two Other Firemen and Workman Burned
Three firemen, including Battalion Chief Ross, and a workman were severely burned yesterday afternoon when an explosion sent a sheet of flame swirling about them as they fought a fire in the basement of the eight-story loft building at 154-158 West Eighteenth Street.

Despite his injuries, Chief Ross carried on the building one of the other firemen, Hugh Bonner, of Truck 12, son of former Chief Bonner, Patrick Mulroy, a member of the same company, was rescued by Lieutenant Hauser. Both Bonner and Mulroy were so severely burned that they were removed to Bellevue Hospital.

The other injured man was George Trinch, an employee of the Hellmuth, Obata & Kassabaum, which occupied the basement. The explosion was caused by a carboy of benzol in the basement.

CALL SHOPLIFTER AN OLD OFFENDER

Police Identify "Marion
Clark" as Mrs. Arnheim,
Arrested Year Ago

CHASED 5 MONTHS
BY DETECTIVE SQUAD

Lighting Changes and Agility Said to Have
Balked Her Pursuers

The innocent little movie actress Marion Clark, who was pitted when she was accused of amassing property worth $25,000 by the gentle art of shoplifting, yesterday lost some of the appeal she had had for the more sympathetic of the city's detectives. When they found that she was Marion Arnheim, arrested for shoplifting a year ago, they decided, as one of them put it, that they held "the cleverest little booster New York has known in twenty-five years."

Meanwhile Marion Clark-Seaton-Arnheim slept peacefully in Jefferson Market prison, while a young man, as yet unidentified, made frenzied but unsuccessful efforts to get bail for her. He is one of the elements of mystery in the case, though the girl's poetry says that he is "just a young man who came from Newark to read poetry with Miss Clark."

Outwitted Detectives
Some of the detectives enjoyed the first sound sleep they had had in the five months during which Marion Clark seems to have been acquiring the four-an-dollar loaf that was taken on Sunday from her fiery stuffed rooms at 63 West Sixty-ninth Street. While she was collecting her thousands of dollars' worth of furs, gowns, hats, etc., they followed her through revolving doors, and she dodged out again, while the detectives searched in vain for her handbag.

They chased her to the very threshold of the women's retiring rooms in the various stores and swore that she never came out again. She never did. It was always a metamorphosed Marion Clark that sauntered forth, in another suit, another hat and other boots, her old ones safe in her muff or her handbag.

Last night she was where they could be sure of her. Her finger prints had been shown, they said, that she was the wife of Edward Arnheim, of the Hotel Prince George. She was arrested in December, 1915, in the lobby of the Hotel McAlpin after a shoplifting expedition, and later fined $25.

The Clark girl never left a store where she had reason to suspect she had been taking an article without doing something to avert suspicion. In one instance she ordered a pair of gloves and a pair of shoes, and in a fictitious name and address, while she quietly concealed nine pairs in her handbag. Then she went through two departments, where no one else was stirring to test whether she was being followed. Finding that she was, she returned to the glove counter and apologized for having accidentally dropped some gloves into her bag.

Says Her Mind Is a Blank
"My mind's a blank and I don't remember anything about the half of what Mark Alter, reported her as saying yesterday. He declared that she had wept and said that she 'would rather go to jail than have her family learn of her arrest.'"

She told him that she came from Boston, had been educated in Washington and had never "taken anything until five months ago, and didn't know why she happened to leave her home."

The very fact that she took things she didn't need and couldn't wear or sell proves that it was kleptomania, beyond a doubt," Mr. Alter declared.

Miss Clark's dresser drawers were filled with tags that she had torn from the looted garments. Buyers of six stores yesterday filled an inner room at Police Headquarters, where they identified such things as a mole cap appraised at $500, three pairs of pumps worth $75, hundreds of yards of Irish lace and scores of gowns, suits and hats.

"They've taken my own things, too," Miss Clark complained to her attorney. Her landlady said the police had barely left the walls of the room.

FUGITIVE PREACHER MARRIED TEN TIMES

Woman Says He Fled with Cash on Honeymoon

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.)
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 27.—While a judicial commission of the North River Presbytery was debating charges of alleged polygamy, fraud and blasphemy filed against him, the Rev. Arthur Worthington, pastor of the Little Church, at New Hamburg, N. Y., was being wedded to his tenth bride in Wilmington, Del., according to information submitted to the District Attorney's office in this city today.

Worthington, whose real name is Samuel Oakley Crawford and who girdled the globe under a dozen other aliases, according to the findings of the Presbyterian tribunal, which cast him out of the Church, is still missing.

Mrs. Charles G. Boone, a middle-aged woman, informed the Dutchess County prosecutor that from a photograph of Worthington she was sure he was the man who married her in Wilmington in August and vanished in October with $2,500, all her available cash.

The preacher, while holding the pulpit in New Hamburg, proposed to start a free love cult in this city, and known to the vaudeville stage as "the man who talks about his father." He had two children.

ACTOR KILLED, WIFE DIES

Charles Case Accidentally Shoots Himself; News Fatal to Mate

Charles Case, monologist and negro imitator, killed himself accidentally yesterday when cleaning an automatic pistol in his room at the Hotel Palace, 132 West Forty-fifth Street.

His wife, Charlotte, died from shock at her home in Buffalo on hearing of his death.

Albert Cutler, a friend, had just left Case's room when the shot brought him back. Case was lying across the bed. His friend bent over him.

"I beg your pardon," Case gasped, and rolled over, dead.

He was fifty-eight years old and was known to the vaudeville stage as "the man who talks about his father." He had two children.
